

HIGH QUALITY
JAPANESE INCENSE

The history of fragrance dates back to the discovery of fire. Our ancestors kept a fire lit all day and throughout the night. Occasionally an aroma would be created when a piece of scented wood was thrown into the flames. Because of the scent and the pleasing sight of the smoke and the flame, it is no wonder that people felt the mystery and power of these aromas and sent up their wishes and prayers with them.

Even now, scented wood is burned in places of prayer around the world. Moreover, fragrance is a presence where people seek to be stimulated as well as where a sense of calm is appreciated. Today, fragrance is an element of modern spiritual culture, of a well-rounded life.

In ancient India, aromas were used in a system of medicine called Ayurveda. Four thousand years later, as they migrated to the West, those aromas were interpreted as fragrance oils, while they transformed into incense on the way to the East. West met East in Japan. They fused, resulting in new creations that continue to evolve.

The world has found a common language in fragrance. This language is the base of the fragrance culture of Japan: where “Prayer” and “Healing” co-exist. It is here that we can listen to melodies of fragrance, which are played by a trio of traditional culture, refined sensibility, and state-of-the-art modern technology.

A Japanese Tradition – Incense of Japan

The culture of Japanese incense has been evolving for more than one thousand years. Nippon Kodo is in the center of the great stream of time and tradition.

The history of Japanese incense began in the sixth century, when Buddhism was introduced to Japan. In the beginning, incense was used in Buddhism rituals. Scented wood, aromatic spices, and herbal medicines were burned and offered to Buddha while prayers were made and wishes were asked. This fragrant ritual spread nationwide, and at the same time, burning incense increased its popularity among the nobles for enjoyment. During the Muromachi era, a game of name that incense turned into an art called “Koh-Do / The way to appreciate incense”. In the Edo era, methods of manufacturing incense advanced, making incense sticks affordable to ordinary people. Incense has come down a long way and is now seen everywhere in Japan. Nippon Kodo has successfully embodied the craftsmanship of notable incense masters, such as Takai Juemon (aka Kohju) who was working for the imperial court during the 16th century, as well as the methods of Yujiroh Kitoh, who combined Japanese incense sticks and Western fragrance oils in the 19th century. Nowadays, modern factories of Nippon Kodo are not only in Japan, but worldwide. Each factory’s incense stick, cone, and coil is based on more than 440 years of tradition of craftsmanship.

Superior Incense

In creating this incense we sought the ultimate in fragrance made with abundant use of agarwood from Vietnam, including the most valuable form of it, kyara. Nippon Kodo's superior incense represents a heritage passed down to this day from the late-16th century Tensho period incense merchant, Koju, that supplied the imperial court with incense. A collector's collection with a limited annual production run, and using the rarest of materials. Enchanting, noble, profound, and subtle – a timeless aroma with endless breadth and evocative depth. Savor the lasting, bewitching delight of fragrant kyara wood.

Descriptions of the three fragrances: Rose (yellow), Lily (green), and Violet (violet)

Rose

Gorgeous Rose: a sweet, floral-woody scent (TOP: Spice, MIDDLE: Rose & Vanilla, BASE: Sandalwood & Musk). Based on exquisite roses, Rose is a scent with an accent of spiciness along with tender sweetness of vanilla. Rose is a brilliant, sweet, floral-woody scent that is made of high-quality Indian Sandalwood added with mellow musk-style aroma.

Lily

Fresh Lily: A green-floral-woody scent (TOP: Leafy Green, MIDDLE: White Lily, BASE: Sandalwood & Musk). With a focus on fresh White Lilies, Lily is a scent that is “green floral” – bittersweet like leafy green. Lily is a dignified, green-floral-woody scent that is made of high-quality Indian Sandalwood added with mellow musk-style aroma.

Violet

Lovely Violet: A powdery, floral-woody scent (TOP: Violet, MIDDLE: Floral, BASE: Sandalwood & Musk). Gathered up like a delicate bouquet of lovely violet, Violet is a scent that feels moist and powdery. Violet is a calm, powdery floral-woody scent that is made of quality Indian Sandalwood added with mellow musk-style aroma.

Fragrance & Incense

Adding zest or tranquility, to Living.

Fragrance moves the soul. Some fragrances add zest, and some spread calmness. Today, many people use incense for relaxation and healing, to soothe the spirit and to make the time and space in which they live fulfilling. Going back more than a thousand years the Japanese have fostered a unique sensibility, wisdom, and culture. As an inheritor of this history and culture, Nippon Kodo has transformed the world of incense by adding the latest technologies to traditional techniques.

大江戸香

OEDO-KOH

The rich translation of incense craft and the art of the perfumer weave the fragrance of old Edo.

The culture of Edo (the old name of Tokyo) was a playful and stylish one, born out of a marriage of the elegant and the common, the coarse and the refined. People enjoyed the four seasons, treasured their friends and neighbors, and lived lives brimming with vitality. This series was created by master incense artisans in Tokyo to express the fragrant atmosphere of old Edo. A single thin column of smoke beckons you to the stylish, modernist world that Edo represents. We invite you to bask in the fragrant world of Edo.

This soothing incense is created especially to evoke pleasant dreams and to remind us of long forgotten memories.

"The Dream of Dreams"

It has a subtle, yet full bodied Japanese fragrance. In Japan, the flow of one season to the next is very subtle, which is why the premonitions of the coming season is a very important theme in literature and paintings.

In "The Dream of Dreams" line, these premonitions appear in the forms of flowers, plants, and animals. The images, like the seasons, are at times clear and at others fading out.

The Chië brand was developed for modern-day lifestyles. Following the ancient wisdom, this new collection is made exclusively with natural aromatic ingredients in powder form. Inspired by Buddhist terminology, “Chië” is “wisdom” – the ability to see things as they really are and to recognize the truth. Enso is a circle painted with a single stroke in Zen calligraphy. The circle represents the infinite, the beginning and the end of everything, enlightenment, psychology, and the universe as a whole.

This modern incense series consist of 9 different products originating from fragrant trees from all around the world. Seven are from single-origin woods and two are blended incense for the purpose of meditation and purification.

Big boxes

Some of these large boxes contain aloeswood. Since ancient times, aloeswood has been prized as one of the most pleasant fragrances. It is one of the pillars of Japanese culture and is used as an offering to the Buddha and for the incense ceremony. In Japanese, Jinkoh means “wood that sinks” and it refers to the aloeswood so impregnated with resin that it can no longer float. It is an exquisite, mysterious and mystical aroma that calms the spirit and comforts the heart.

Some of the incense rolls on the left hand page are also available in larger boxes with around 400 sticks in each box. These large boxes are presented below and are ideal if you burn incense regularly. Their lovely design also makes them an original fragrant gift.

Edonishiki & Kaori Awase

The design of these boxes are inspired by Edo prints and reflect a genuinely Japanese aesthetic sensibility.

The end of the Edo Era (1603-1867) was a time of flourishing prosperity and one of the expressions of this was fabric prints, Edo Komon. In samurai society clothes were simple but people wanted to look unique and different and sought to express themselves through prints, colours and drawings on their fabrics. These decorative motifs extended to many other aspects of everyday life, evoking images of a dazzlingly beautiful world and even today those designs created long ago seem modern and are still a source of inspiration.

EDONISHIKI IKI

Edonishiki has a delicious aroma, a bittersweet fruity fragrance with hints of crisp cinnamon and subtle vanilla undertones.

The Same Komon pattern of the box is made up of overlapping sectors, each sector containing tiny dots lined up diagonally. It is known for being tough like an armour and considered as a protective talisman.

The four seasons

Enjoy the changing seasons of the year with inspiring Japanese fragrances. To add more atmosphere maybe reading your favourite Japanese Haiku poems.

The custom of burning incense began at the dawn of human history. Incense brings out our truest selves. The spirit of seeking good fragrances means to entrust incense with a passing moment of reverence, affection, mental repose, introspection and cleansing. Though time may pass and lifestyles may change, this could be seen as a genuine feature of humanity that will definitely never change.

Kazedayori – The four seasons

Kazedayori, literally “what the wind tells”, is a small collection of four incenses that calm the mind and comfort the heart. Its heart-warming fragrances have been fashioned in the image of Japan’s four seasons. # Neri-koh

In Japan, neri-koh balls are used during tea ceremonies from November until Spring. The specific recipes and making processes of this thousand-year art are still today kept in the utmost secrecy.

1.000 years ago, the Japanese people used to prepare healing pills made of wood, herbs and spices kneaded with honey and fruits. This very special art that was mentioned in the "Story of Genji", has passed through centuries and is now best known as neri-koh.

All the ingredients which are carefully selected are grinded manually to preserve their perfume; then they are kneaded with honey and plum pulp to get the right humidity rate; the mix is sealed in a jar which is buried in a wet place where it ages naturally; it works like a charm and after a minimum of three years, the mix is used to make the small neri-koh balls.

Neri-koh - Traditional Japanese incense balls

The scent of neri-koh depends on many different circumstances: the season, whether the aromatic wood was kept in a sunny place or not, the humidity rate in the air when the mix was prepared ... The number of parameters is such that each single ball gives off a unique fragrance.

How to use it: you can proceed the same way as incense ceremony by heating the ball on a mika crystal placed over a Japanese charcoal. You can also simply place it close to a burning coal and let the healing scent fill the air around you. Do not light the neri-koh ball directly.

Incense Ceremony Tools

When a group of people partake of koh together it is called Koseki, an incense ceremony. The tools used for listening to the koh are called Koh-dogu.

A variety of tools to use in incense ceremonies.

Breathing in and appreciating the different varieties of incense is called listening to koh. When you listen to koh you lean over as though actually listening carefully to something, but that is not the reason for the expression. Rather, the participant breathes in the fragrance and concentrates his mind, expanding his spiritual awareness – just as when listening to beautiful music our mind naturally opens, we listen to the incense with the ears of spirit.

HOW TO USE INCENSE

- First, light the tip of the incense and blow out the flame.
- Put the burning incense in an incense stand and place on top of a ceramic or non flammable plate to catch the ashes. Another method of burning incense would be to place the stick in a container of ash, which helps hold the stick up straight.
- Place the incense in the center or corner of a room and avoid having it directly next to you.
- The best way to experience incense is to enjoy the wafting fragrant smoke from afar. As you see the smoke rise you will begin to enjoy the pleasant fragrance that spreads throughout your space. You will also enjoy the lingering fragrance of the incense long after it has stopped burning.

VARIETIES of INCENSE

Along with the long history of Japan, the culture of incense has developed in many ways. There are some types of incense that have developed from the influence of festivals and religious ceremonies. There are others that have come to be by using ingredients brought in from foreign countries and influenced by Japanese style in the course of being passed down from generation to generation. This fragrance culture has brought something special to our daily lives.

INCENSE THAT YOU BURN

STICK INCENSE

This is the most popular type of incense which can be burned to enjoy the floral, fruity, herbal, and many other varieties of fragrances in your own room.

CONE INCENSE

Not only does this form of incense burn quickly and strongly, it is also easier to use because it does not scatter ash everywhere. Light the tip of the cone and blow out the flame. Place the cone in a burner or on top of ash.

COIL INCENSE

This type of incense is better suited for large spaces or areas that have a large flow of air because it burns for many hours.

INCENSE THAT REQUIRES INDIRECT HEAT

PASTE INCENSE

Fragrant woods and natural aromas are turned into a powder and formed into a round pellet by using the traditional method. This is the original form of incense and has even been mentioned in the Japanese novel, Genji Monogatari.

FRAGRANT WOOD

Aloeswood and Sandalwood are representative of this type of wood. Within the various types of Aloeswood, Kyara has been considered to be the finest and most valuable. Purchasing thinly cut chips is much easier to handle.

Raw Materials of Incense

Incense is considered to be sacred and used in temples and churches at times and at other times it can be used as a tool to bring more peace and beauty into one's life. Incense can be looked at as a way of communicating with others. Today we live in the "Age of Fragrance". We surround ourselves with scents. In fact, the use of fragrance is considered a form of self expression. With this in mind, we continuously search the world for the highest quality raw materials in order to manufacture and supply fine incense which will bring you pleasure and enrich your day.

Base of incense

MACHILUS THUNBERGII (Tabu-no-ki)

- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Taiwan, Southern China, Japan, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL: The bark of this tree is ground into powder and used as the base ingredient of incense.

Wooden fragrance

AGARWOOD (Aloeswood)

- FRAGRANCE TONE: Sweet, spicy, bitter, and sour; various scents depend on the tree's character.
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Vietnam, Cambodia, Indonesia, Myanmar, Laos, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:
The young Agarwood tree does not have any fragrance. As the tree ages, interaction with bacteria begins to produce an aromatic resin. With time, it ages to a very rich, dark resin with a distinctive and lovely fragrance. Agarwood is a tree that does not float in water due to its density from the high percentage of resin. Because of this, in Japan, this scented wood is called "Jinkoh", which means "A fragrant and heavy wood which sinks".

SANDALWOOD

- FRAGRANCE TONE: Products made in India have a soft and sweet, woody type of aroma and the scent lingers for a great length of time. The fragrance characteristics depend on the region.
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: India, Indonesia, Australia, Tonga, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:
The bark of the Sandalwood tree has an ashy white color and the surface has a smooth texture. The leaves and bark of the tree have almost no smell, yet the center of the trunk is very aromatic. Sandalwood has been valued for centuries for its fragrance, for woodworking, and for medicinal purposes. In Japan, this scented wood is called "Byakudan", which means "A white scented wood".

Herbal fragrance

BENZOIN

- FRAGRANCE TONE: A sweet fragrance similar to vanilla.
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Thailand, Vietnam, Indonesia, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

A resin is released by carving into the branch of a Styracaceae tree.

This resin is dried and used for toothpaste, cosmetics, cough suppressant, and also a way to uphold the fragrance of the incense. There are 2 types which are Siam Benzoin and Sumatra Benzoin.

BORNEOL

- FRAGRANCE TONE: Camphoric
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Malaysia, Indonesia, Borneo, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

The crystal like grains inside the center of the branch of an evergreen tree in the Dipterocarpaceae family. Borneol can be used to create the fresh scent of ink. Borneol has been used as an insecticide and preservative which explains why it has been found in the bones of skeletons dug up from ancient tombs in Japan. Borneol can also be used as an inexpensive substitute for mothballs.

CINNAMON

- FRAGRANCE TONE: Spicy Scent
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Sri Lanka, Vietnam, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

Cinnamon is the bark of the camphor tree that has been dried. Many years ago it was used as a preservative in the process of mummification. In present time, it is used for such things as snacks, curry sauce, aromatics in food, as well as soap and body care products. It can also be used as an herbal remedy for upset stomach, fever and pain.

CLOVE

- FRAGRANCE TONE: Representative of spicy fragrances
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Madagascar, Indonesia, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

In the past, this was a rare commodity. This is used for fragrance as well as for cooking purposes. This was brought into Japan many years ago and was considered important enough to be stored in the Shoso-in which holds all of the emperor's ancient treasures.

STAR ANISE

- FRAGRANCE TONE: The sweet fragrance of Anise
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: China, Indonesia, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

The ripened fruit of an evergreen tree of the Illiciaceae family is dried and used for liqueurs, snacks and toothpaste. Famous for its use in Chinese cooking and as an herbal remedy for stomach problems.

Raw Materials of Incense

Animalic fragrance

BABYLONIA

- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Vietnam, Madagascar, Zanzibar island of Tanzania, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:
The shell part of a sea snail that is ground up into powder form. This has been used for many years as a way to uphold fragrances.

MUSK

- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: China, India, Nepal, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:
Musk has a foul scent on its own, but turns into a pleasant, sensual scent when diluted with water by a 1 to 1000 ratio. Well known for use in perfume and cosmetics but also used to increase men's libidos. In 1973, the Washington agreement restricted the export/import of musk. In present day natural musk is rarely used for fragrances but rather a composition of fragrances that reminds us of the natural musk.

Other

CEDAR

- FRAGRANCE TONE: Woody scent
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: U.S.A., Morocco, China, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:
Character of raw material : A tree of the pine family similar to the Himalayan Conifer. Planted in various parks and temples in India due to its holy characteristics. An important ingredient for many woody fragrances.

GERANIUM

- FRAGRANCE TONE: A strong yet subtle fragrance similar to rose
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Reunion Island of France, China, Morocco, Tanzania, Kenya, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:
A rather short perennial plant that grows to a height of about 3 ft. Geranium oil is extracted from the branches and leaves of the plant before its flowers bloom. It is considered to be a very important ingredient amongst the many types of fragrance products.

JASMINE

- FRAGRANCE TONE: One of the 3 major floral scents. An elegant and mellow fragrance that is representative of white floral scents.
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Egypt, Morocco, India, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:
Jasmine, similar to Rose is a frequently used floral fragrance. The flower blooms at midnight and should be picked when its fragrance is at its best during the hours of 5 am and 9 am. This flower was famous for being produced in the Principality of Monaco, but due to the volume of harvest and the cost of labor, production has been moved to Egypt, Morocco, and India.

LAVENDER

- FRAGRANCE TONE: Herbal Scent
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: France, Bulgaria, England, Japan, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:
Lavender grows in areas that have an altitude between 2300 ft. and 5000 ft. There are similar plants called Spike Lavender and Lavandin. Lavender is famous for having many therapeutic benefits, and it can be both calming and uplifting.

OLIBANUM / FRANKINCENSE

- FRAGRANCE TONE: A balsam fragrance that is sweet and refreshing
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Sudan, Somalia, Ethiopia
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

The milky white sap that comes out of the bark of a tree that hardens into a yellowish pebble when it is exposed to air. It is widely used in European Christian churches.

PATCHOULI

- FRAGRANCE TONE: A powerful woody scent representative of oriental fragrances
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Indonesia, India, China, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

The perennial plant of the shiso family. The patchouli leaf has no fragrance when it is still green and young yet produces a strong fragrance when the leaf starts to grow away from the stem. It has been used as an ingredient for incense for many years in Japan. Also used as a base fragrance in perfume like vetiver and sandalwood are often used.

ROSE

- FRAGRANCE TONE: One of 3 gorgeous representative scents of the floral family. Although there are thousands of varieties of roses, these two are the most commonly used for fragrances.

ROSE DAMASCENA

- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Bulgaria
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

Deep in the blue-mist Balkan Mountains is the ideal, natural habitat for growing the ancient Bulgarian Rose of the Valley. The temperate climactic conditions promulgate the essence of the regal Bulgarian Rose of the Valley making the scent robust and lasting without being overpowering.

ROSE CENTIFOLIA

- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Southern France, Morocco, Egypt, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

The Provincial Rose essence on the other hand is more subtle, softer and a little spicy. This Provincial Rose scent is certainly the most popular of floral scents.

VANILLA

- FRAGRANCE TONE: Balsam scent
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Madagascar, Reunion Island of France, Seychelles, Comoros, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

During the harvest season, vanilla does not have any fragrance. When heat is applied to the pod, it dries and creates the pleasant scent of vanilla. The completed product is ranked and mainly used for culinary use.

VETIVER

- FRAGRANCE TONE: A woody & earthy scent that you would associate with the roots of a plant or soil.
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: Reunion Island of France, Indonesia, Haiti, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

Vetiver is a perennial plant found in tropical or subtropical zones. The oil is taken from the root of the plant. Vetiver oil has preservative characteristics as well as a powerful woody aroma which can be used for a base scent for a large range of fragrances.

YLANG YLANG

- FRAGRANCE TONE: A floral scent similar to jasmine
- COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: The Philippines, Malaysia, Indonesia, New Guinea, etc.
- CHARACTER OF RAW MATERIAL:

Ylang Ylang grows along the coast line in tropical areas. It is often used in floral scents and is also known for use in essential oils.
